I've tried to order plumbing materials off the internet before, but as a rule you'll generally get at least one item that is the wrong size or material, and in other cases, just outright not included. I recently switched to Canarsee.com for my supplies and so far this hassle has been reduced significantly. Their items ship faster than other sites I've used, and way cheaper than brick and mortar supply places. By and large Canarsee's a great place to shop, but their selection can be limiting if you're looking for an unusual part or lesser known brand, so it's not perfect. Additionally, the site lacks how-to guides, code tips, or advice from adepts- so know what you're doing when you order from here.

All in all, Canarsee.com's a great place to shop thanks to its great prices, just know what you're looking for.
